

ANDREW SORENSEN, PH.D.

Zirus Board of Directors

Andrew Sorensen, PhD, received his Bachelor's Degrees at Yale University and the University of Illinois at Urbana/Champaign, his Master's Degrees at Yale University and University of Michigan and his Doctoral Degrees at Yale University. He also has received honorary Doctoral Degrees at University of Illinois at Urbana/Champaign, University of South Carolina, University of Queensland (Australia) and Medical University of South Carolina. He has taught at the following medical schools (in chronological order): Boston University, University of Rochester, Harvard University, University of Cambridge. He held the following Administrative Positions (also in chronological order): Dean, School of Public Health, University of Massachusetts at Amherst; Executive Director, AIDS Institute, Johns Hopkins Medical Institutions; Provost and Vice-President for Academic Affairs, University of Florida; President, University of Alabama; President, University of South Carolina.

Currently he is Distinguished Professor of the University and Professor of Medicine, University of South Carolina; President, Institute for the Advancement of Health Care, University of South Carolina/Greenville Hospital System Academic Health System. He is a member of the National Institutes of Health National Science Advisory Board on Biosecurity, member, Board of Directors, Association of Academic Health Centers and member, National Board of Public Health Examiners. He is author or editor of eight books, author of over 100 articles in scholarly journals, and 6 book chapters.